Note: To be able to set up background job processing locally, you'd have to install redis server locally, in addition to install the sidekiq gem.

You can get Redis from here: http://redis.io/download, and you need to start the redis server (type "redis-server") in addition to starting your rails server, then you have to run sidekiq with `bundle exec sidekiq` , to have the background'ed emails sent.

Don't worry about sending out emails on production yet, we'll take care of that in an upcoming assignment.
